What Will You Make Today? is a non-fiction picture book that invites children to explore the many ways they can make a difference in the world.

In a world bursting with possibilities, what will you make today? Will you make believe? Will you make noise? Will you make a wish? Will you make an excuse? Will you make things right? Will you make a difference?

A series of questions subtly builds perspective from a personal standpoint, culminating in a wholistic view of the world. What Will You Make Today? reveals how our choices can effect change and make an impact in our lives, the lives of others and in the world whilst retaining the youthful wonder of our imagination.

MAURA PIERLOT is an award-winning author and playwright based in Canberra. Maura's widely acclaimed play Fragments will be released as a web series in 2023. Her debut picture book, The Trouble in Tune Town, won the 2018 ACT Writing and Publishing Award (Children's category) and overseas honours. She has a Ph.D. in philosophy, specialising in ethics. Maura has a picture book with Affirm Press in 2024.

TRIANDHIKA ANJANI is originally from Indonesia and studied illustration in Japan. She lives in Canberra and works remotely as an illustrator. She has loved reading (and looking at) picture books ever since she was small, and always dreamed of making illustrations for stories. Dhika received 3rd place at the New England Illustration Prize 2022. The sky, light, and nature landscapes are sources of inspiration for her and the subjects of many of her artworks.
